After 55 years of practice and still wanting to continue doing what I love doing, the reality of age and a shortening future makes one ponder the next phase in professional life. The best of all scenarios would be to sell the practice to a younger optometrist wishing to sustain the legacy of what has become a well-regarded practice and for me to continue as an associate to see my patients. You made this happen.

From carefully assessing the practice, patient load, equipment, physical office and geographic environment you came up with a valuation. You placed the practice onto the market, held an open house and ultimately found an interested doctor. You then marshalled us, even assisted the purchaser in placing a preliminary offer, continually advised me, shuffled documents to the various parties, maintained scheduled completion dates and held my hand through the convoluted and often foreign territory of legal and financial requirements.

I could not have done this without your professional expertise.

Thank you

Barry
